

HOOVER PLEASED WITH APPROVAL GIVEN BY PUBLIC

Letters, Telegrams Show Evidence of Commendation of Message

WALL STREET ENDORSES

Stock Prices Shoot Upward, and Little Criticism is Shown in Congress

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Hoover was well satisfied today over the general chorus of approval that greeted his first comprehensive message to Congress.

Evidence of public commendation drifted into the White House in the form of stacks of letters and telegrams. Wall Street and the financial marts showed their endorsement by shooting stock prices upward. And even in Congress—traditionally inclined to criticize the executive's recommendations—there was less criticism than usual, and there was evidenced an inclination to go along in most of the measures he proposed.

The worst the Democrats said of the message was that it contained "nothing new" and that it was "evasive on the tariff."

Republican leaders, sorely pressed by rebellions and insurgencies against party authority, breathed sighs of relief over its non-controversial character.

This does not mean, however, that there will not be opposition to some of the President's recommendations—particularly those requests for giving the White House arbitrary power to rise and lower tariff rates, and to reorganize government departments and bureaus without reference to Congress jealous of its own prerogatives, Congress will wrangle for many months before according the executive any more power than he now possesses.

There will be opposition, too, over the proposal to transfer the enforcement of prohibition from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. How serious this opposition will be remains to be seen.

But, in general, it is probably safe to say that Congress has received Mr. Hoover's initial message with more equanimity and less controversy than any other White House message in years. Taking potshots at Presidential messages and making wise-cracks about them has been one of Congress' annual diversions. There was almost a total lack of these quips today.

Analysis of the message disclosed that the President made some forty specific recommendations to the legislators, covering every phase of governmental activity from prohibition to foreign relations.

How many of these recommendations can or will be carried out before next June when Congress hurries homeward to see about getting itself re-elected is, of course, conjectural.

But the speed with which Congress is proceeding to carry out his chief recommendation—that of reducing Federal taxes to the tune of $160,000,000—augurs well for the general program. For, as Senator Watson (R.) of Indiana, the majority leader, pointed out, the message contains no highly controversial suggestions.

It was more like the annual report of the chairman of the board of directors of a large corporation in its business-like account of what has taken place and the prospects for the immediate future. And Congress received it in that vein.

LARGEST BODY OF EAGER PEOPLE BENT ON ACCUMULATING CHRISTMAS JOYS SINCE 1914 WHEN WAR CLOUDS HAD GATHERED

Including today there are only 18 shopping days to Christmas.

The Yuletide this year will be responsible for one of the largest bodies of eager people bent on accumulating Christmas joys for big and little folks that America has known since war back in 1914, when war clouds had gathered over Europe and the shadows had already begun to cast their sinister reflections upon the United States.

To this end the holiday may be expected to display much of the old time recognition of its distinctive appeal to the young. Its best celebration is that

FORGET-ME-NOT SALE SPONSORED BY LEGION

Bracken Post Backs Sale of Flowers for Disabled Veterans

YOUNG WOMEN ASSIST

A "Forget-Me-Not" sale, the proceeds from which will be devoted to the betterment of disabled veterans of the World War, will be held here on Saturday of this week. Misses Roberta Pearson and Dorothy Descamps will have direct charge of the plans in Bristol and they will be assisted by a group of young ladies who will cover the business and residential districts of the town in a thorough manner.

The proceeds derived from the sale will be used for assisting disabled veterans in hospitals in Pennsylvania who are not receiving compensation from the government.

Dan Schaffer, disabled veterans representative for Pennsylvania, has arranged for the sale here and has the full co-operation of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion. The cause is a very worthy one and will undoubtedly find generous support on the part of citizens.

Officers Are Permanently Elected for Edgely P.-T. A.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Edgely met last evening in the Edgely school house at eight o'clock, the meeting being well attended.

The officers which had been temporarily elected at the previous meeting, were permanently elected last evening. Mrs. Bilderback was elected treasurer.

A lengthy and most interesting talk was given by Mrs. Fox, of Morrisville, organizer of Parent-Teacher Associations, who told of the activities of the organizations. Her efforts were very much appreciated.

A solo was rendered by Mrs. Mills, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Douden. A short talk by Mrs. Ross, of Edgely, was also appreciated.

It was decided that the regular meeting night of the association be the first Thursday of each month, at eight o'clock. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

JURY ACQUITS PAIR ON CHARGE OF ROBBERY

Were Charged in Seven Bills of Indictment of Robbing Doylestown Places

CONVICT BENSALAMITES

John McLaren and Wm. Eberhart, of Phila., Pay Costs and Are Put on Probation

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 4.—After deliberating but five minutes a jury in criminal court yesterday acquitted Albert E. Harper, amateur prize fighter, and James Clifton Hudson, of Rocky Mount, N. C., charged in seven bills of indictment of robbing local business places and residences at various times during the last twelve months.

LeRoy Trauger, of this place, the third member of the "gang" on trial for the robberies, pleaded guilty to the various offenses and was sentenced by Judge Hiram H. Keller to the Huntingdon Reformatory.

On the witness stand yesterday, Trauger, called as a Commonwealth witness, testified that he was the "watcher" on the occasion of the robberies of local stores and homes while Harper and Hudson did the robbing. He stated that he never got any of the money or loot stolen. Under cross-examination conducted by John L. DuBois, attorney for Harper and Hudson, Trauger stated that the first time he said anything to anyone about Harper and Hudson committing the robberies was in October when he himself was arrested for operating an automobile without the consent of the owner. Trauger said that he told Chief of Police Welsh, of Doylestown, that he knew who committed the robberies.

Mr. DuBois, after the Commonwealth had completed its testimony, moved the Court to give the jury binding instructions for an acquittal since the Commonwealth produced nothing but the testimony of an accomplice. The Court over-ruled the motion and the defense was offered.

Both Hudson, aged 20, and Harper, aged 19, flatly denied they participated in any of the robberies. They denied ever having any conversation with Trauger.

"The Court has no criticism to find with the verdict," Judge Keller told Harper and Hudson after the verdict had been read. "But," continued the Court, "it is my advice that you both go back to Rocky Mount, N. C., and stay there."

Trauger then pleaded guilty to robbing local stores and homes. In pronouncing sentence Judge Keller said: "Your case shows what the results are when a youth travels with bad company. There was no doubt others were with you, that is true, but you have to pay for your folly."

John McLaren and William Eberhart, of Philadelphia, who were convicted of selling liquor at the former Rose Hill Inn, Bensalem township, and who were refused a new trial, were discharged yesterday by Judge Keller upon the payment of costs and were placed on probation for one year. Both men are hosiery knitters, and were advised by the Court to keep in the knitting business and not the bartending business.

Asher Gross, of Pleasant Valley, who was charged with entering the home of the late John Tiltott, Bristol, who was murdered, and stealing a gallon of wine on July 12, was acquitted yesterday by a jury. The case was heard before Judge Shull.

Bernard Conway, of Bensalem township, charged with possessing intoxicating liquor at a road house, pleaded guilty before Judge Shull and was fined $250 and costs.

PENNSYLVANIA GIRLS ENTER AVIATION SCHOOLS

Enrollments by The Score Are Being Made Throughout The Entire State

MANY OFFERED JOBS

By Leo Dolan
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

Pennsylvania's air-minded young women with a flair for money-making have dismissed from their minds the newly-designed Parisian creations featuring the trailing skirts and are discussing with considerable interest, and as much technique, the latest types of air transportation as concerns comfort, safety and reliability under standard conditions.

In other words, a great portion of the feminine population of this state is showing distinct signs of wing sprouting. It is not a fad, nor a passing fancy. Lured by the prospect of "real money," thrills and a chance to "be somebody," Pennsylvania girls by the score are enrolling daily in aviation schools throughout the state.

"The psychological sales value of a 'slip of a girl' manipulating with ease the controls of a modern airplane has gripped plane manufacturers in this country with the result that girl pilots, veterans and newly-graduated alike, find themselves in constant demand."

A case in point is that of Miss Helen Richey, of McKeesport, who made her first solo flight only a month ago. Today, Miss Richey is the recipient of two offers from plane producers to display their planes.

To quote Mrs. Louise Thaden, winner of the Women's National Air Race from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland, O., last year:

"Just now there are not enough women to fill the jobs in the aviation industry. Whereas a male transport pilot would be required to serve his apprenticeship, a woman can step right into a good-paying position; exhibiting or selling planes, at airports, or doing missionary work."

Scranton is going ahead with the plans for its city airport, unheeding suggestions that the city join in the ownership of the present Luzerne county field at Wilkes-Barre. Scranton air fans contend that the Luzerne field is too far from the Lackawanna county city. It is expected that the Scranton port will be completed and dedicated within ten months or a year.

Tentative plans for a Sharon or Shesango Valley airport were discussed recently at the annual dinner of the Sharon Chamber of Commerce. W. M. McConahey, chief engineer of the Westinghouse plant at Sharon, and chairman of the chamber's airport committee, submitted a report on the proposed airport.

Two new air lines are expected to establish bases at or near Philadelphia for passenger and freight cargoes. They are the Mayflower Air Lines, a Los Angeles-to-New York freight flying service, and the Southern Sky Lines, in which William G. McAdoo is interested. It has not yet been determined if the stops will be made in Philadelphia or at Camden.

Application for a charter on behalf of the Pipher Aviation, Inc., has been made at Harrisburg. The company plans the establishment of a commercial airport near Stroudsburg.

Giulio Guicciardo, Brooklyn laborer, who was hired to get "killers" to come to Bristol last December and murder John Tiltott, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Samuel E. Shull to life imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary as an accomplice in the murder.

Guicciardo was convicted of first degree murder. He was the star witness for the Commonwealth.

Maria Tiltott, wife of the murdered man, was also convicted of first degree murder with life imprisonment, but she has appealed the case to the higher court.

Joseph Guida, of Bristol, was convicted of the same charge with the electric chair as the penalty and his case too has been appealed.

Guicciardo was induced by Guida, a lover of Maria Tiltott, to bring the "killers" to Bristol. The hired assassins received $500 for severely beating Giovanni Tiltott, who died as the result of the injuries.

The hired assassins have never been apprehended and are supposed to have left the country.

SCOUT DRIVE IN COUNTY NOW ON IN INTENSIVE WAY

Prominent Residents Throat The County Lend Endorsements to Movement

DONATIONS RECEIVED

Bristol Area Has Contributions Totaling $6,200 On A Goal of $21,550

The intensive phase of the county wide Boy Scout campaign for a $53,000 fund to provide extensions in the troop activities as well as improvements at Camp Buccoo begins this week with opening dinners for all workers in each of the four areas. "It is planned to give each resident of the county an opportunity to subscribe to this great and growing work. It is hoped that citizens will give freely and quickly when called upon, so as not to take up the valuable time of the workers," said Senator Clarence J. Buckman, campaign chairman, in a statement given out yesterday.

Interesting endorsements of the Scout Movement have been received by Publicity Chairman Oscar O. Bean recently. David Burpee, president of the W. Atlee Burpee Company, and a resident of Doylestown, says: "The activities of the Boy Scouts encourage the development of the best in both mind and body."

From James E. Groome, secretary of the Yardley Board of Education, comes the following: "Scouting represents all that is finest for boys. To endorse the Scout Movement is to endorse good citizenship. I often wished that we could inculcate into the heart of every boy and girl, that fine principle of the Scouts: 'Do a good turn daily.' It would gladden the heart of many a school teacher. Boy Scouts are taught resourcefulness, good sportsmanship, to take care of themselves out in the open, high ideals, and the value of good clean recreation. These principles should commend themselves to all citizens."

Mark Thatcher, of Perkasie, assistant U. S. attorney at Philadelphia, sends this statement: "The Boy Scouts of America, more than any other, must be recognized as an attractive, useful and impressive training institution for boys, when they most need it, in the highest qualities of good moral character. It not only teaches what those qualities are, but impels the boys to become possessed of a resolute desire to cultivate and practice them in their own lives. Society owes every boy of Scout age the duty of supplying the means and facilities whereby he can avail himself of this matchless training."

Personal experience speaks in an endorsement written by Charles M. Meredith, editor and proprietor of the Quakertown Free Press: "I have had personal contact with the Boy Scout Movement because my two boys were both members. I believe that I can say that no other movement contributed so much to building up their character at that important period in their lives when it was essential that they be informed, entertained and inspired."

OCCUPATIONS AND YEARS

Much of the fascination that statisticians find in figures comes very likely from the surprises which their compilation seems always to have in store. What joy to spring these surprises on the rest of the world and to see those pet impressions that we all form as the result of a casual daily observation of life burst as with a charge of dynamite. It is an exciting pastime.

There are some amazing figures on human longevity according to occupation. Who, for instance, hasn't thought of coal mining not only as an extra-hazardous but also an unhealthy occupation? The miner works in a cramped position in the dampness and poisonous air of a mine gallery, exposed to a score of agencies productive of disease or sudden death. Yet his expectation of life is not a little beyond that of the average citizen—51.3 years, to be exact, as against 47 years.

Hardly less surprising is the discovery that, of all the occupational classes, doctors live the longest, the average doctor's life being 62 years. While it may be said that the physician knows how to take care of himself, few occupations demand longer, more irregular hours and greater nervous strain, and none exposes its devotees to like dangers of infection and contagion. Compared with the regular hours, lack of strain and cloistered routine of the bookkeeper, doctoring seems like going to war. Yet the average bookkeeper's life is only 36.5 years, the shortest of all.

Possibly there is a clue in the fact that bookkeepers are notoriously bored. It may be that of all the maladies besetting mankind, boredom would, if it could be measured, boast the highest death rate.

AN EUROPEAN DOLLAR?

European bankers, mulling over the affairs of European countries find conflicting interests in manufacturing, marketing and finance. There are natural and wholly artificial lines of both cleavage and union. New countries, jealous of their prospects, incline to stand on technicalities and demand the last penny in their dealings. Older countries, more experienced, tend rather to work together.

The hope of Europe is clearly in the extent to which various heavy industries can be co-ordinated, ever across boundaries. French and German coal and iron are a good example. Notwithstanding national dividing lines, they have strong operations in common, and there are heavy financial holdings international ally.

It is not strange that European bankers turn again to the possibility of having a sort of super-currency for the 35 nations of their continent. They would like a Central Reserve Bank of all Europe. They cite the dollar of the 48 American states as an example of the value of a common currency. But they seem to think that unless there is central authority, governmentally speaking, no such institution can be devised. Professor Cassel points out that the German states were unable to enjoy a common currency until the Reichsbank arrived.

When a man marries he goes into the hands of a receiver.

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?"

By ELEANORE CAREY

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. &amp; Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS

The Molnars have emigrated to New York that their boy, Ted, may enjoy its greater advantages in his career as a budding violinist. He finally takes the advice of Mr. Abrams, a theatrical producer, and buys a saxophone, purchasing the valuable violin that Emperor Franz Josef had given to his father. The elder Molnar loathes jazz and so Ted practices in Central Park until an officer threatens to run him in. He is saved from that experience by the young woman who had been attracted by his playing on shipboard.

INSTALLMENT VIII

"The New York Symphony," Ted lied. "I am to start rehearsals right away, and they were good enough to give me an advance in salary." His guilty conscience made the red hot blood surge to his face—it was very unfortunate that he was compelled to lie to his mother and father. He'd never be able to accept that condition with any peace of mind—but then—it was, after all, better than that they should all starve, so he made the answer directly and singly. Mrs. Molnar began busily preparing the food, and casting all fear and worry to the four winds. Ted shouted, "Is everybody happy?"

"I am so happy, Sonny, I could cry," said his mother as he put his arms around her, waltzed her around two or three times and suggested that she wait until after their supper was over before crying at all.

"You and mother are always thinking about me."

The father had glanced several times with deep affection in his eyes, at the violin case standing in the corner of the room. Now he walked toward it. Ted observed the old man's intentions and, in great fear lest he open the violin case, he rushed to his father.

"Ted," said the old man, "Please play the piece you are to rehearse tomorrow for me. I will coach you so that you will not make a single error."

But the boy, shaking from fear, put his hands on his father's shoulders and answered:

"No, no, father! Not now! I'm too excited to play anything. We will wait first!"

The father, momentarily crestfallen looked at his son and asked, "Why, why do you not play at home any more, my boy?" And Ted hating the deceit he was forced to continue, said:

"I have been too upset, and now there will be so much rehearsing to do I'll just be 'played out'."

"Well, before the opening night I shall put the finishing touches on your work, Ted. I want everyone to realize what a born artist you are!" Happy to escape for the time being a circumstance which would, to say the least, upset the joy of knowing that he would be able to pay rent and buy food again, Ted readily agreed to this arrangement.

His father had gone into their little bedroom and was coming toward him now with an air of great mystery and something in his hands and hanging over his arm.

"Here," he said with pride, "Here are some things for you, my boy. I have always saved them for you, for I were them the right of my command performance."

Ted's eyes filled, and he was touched by the thoughtful sentiment of his father. He took the garment and unfolded it. It was his father's old opera cape, antiquated and out of style, and his high silk hat. Ted realized how ridiculous these things were for him, but his heart was full of gratitude and affection for the old man whose thoughts had been centered on him these many years.

"Thank you, father, I appreciate your thoughtfulness more than I can say. It seems you and mother are always thinking of me," breaking off suddenly and putting his arms around his father's shoulders with deep affection.

MOTOR FUEL

Now...

cold mornings make hot tempers unless there is
No - Nox Motor Fuel
in your tank. : : :

QUICK winter starting depends upon complete and instant vaporization of gasoline in the combustion chamber... Vaporization depends upon low initial boiling point and low end or dry point... Ordinary gasolines have an end point as high as 437° Fahrenheit... they do not vaporize quickly enough for a quick winter start.

Gulf No-Nox Motor Fuel - Aviation Grade is the perfect winter gasoline... its initial is under 100°

Fahrenheit...its end point is 374° Fahrenheit...against 437° Fahrenheit of ordinary gasolines...Complete vaporization takes place at the first pressure of the starter and instant ignition follows...It Stops Knocks...eliminates excessive choking... gives added mileage and More Power.

Remember that any ordinary gasoline may be doped with chemicals for anti-knock purposes but they possess no winter starting value.

KONJOLA WINS VICTORY OVER STUBBORN ILLS

Stomach Trouble and Catarrh Ended for Norristown Man—All Else Tried Failed

MR. FRANK H. MULLEN
"After receiving such wonderful results from Konjola I am only too glad to give it my indorsement," said Mr. Norristown, Pa. "I had been bothered with stomach trouble for over three years. No matter what I ate I always suffered intense pain. Pressure of gas against my heart brought on smothering spells and palpitation. Catarrh had been with me for some time. My hearing and breathing were affected, and often I had roaring noises in my head. "I tried medicine after medicine, but it was through Konjola that I regained my health. My digestion was quickly restored and now I eat three hearty meals a day without the slightest distress. There is not a trace of those ailments remaining, and I enjoy life like any other normal, healthy person." Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)
